Objection of Authorization of a Well Location Exception
Daniel Rice, License Number: 35301

In the matter of application of Daniel Rice, license number 35301, for an order authorizing a well location exception. I object to this application pursuant to K.A.R. 82-3-108. The gas well could potentially devalue the land as it was purchased for investment purposes. The close proximity of the gas well may deter or prevent the possibility of development on this land. The well would be a possible deterrent to future buyers due to the potential to pollute and as a detraction from the scenery. Gas wells have a level of hazard associated with them. The hazard of a gas leak going undetected, due to the lack of odor, and the possibility of an explosion. The gas well also infringes upon my correlative rights, as the gas being pulled would be a part of the same pocket of gas under my land. The land also has the potential to be used for my own building in the future. The location of the gas well would be too close to the site in which I could build a house. I do not want a gas well so close to where I could live. Due to the reasons listed above, I object and protest the authorization of the gas well location exception. Daniel Rice does not have my permission to drill and have a gas well. The law should be held that the well be no closer to an adjoining property line than the specified 330 feet. This exception should not be granted.
