Dear Sirs:

15-CONS-009-CNN1

I do not wish to be part of the inclusionary zone for unitization in the Permian Basin. Since my leasehold on the Edith Hickey Lease is at the edge of area proposed for CO2 flooding, it will be easy enough to gerrymander the boundaries as was done in the original plat proposal.

I question the wisdom of flooding the limestone above the Ogallalah Aquafier--which supplies the water to the Central States--in order to flood the basin to retrieve oil.

The pretense to get rid of bad CO2 by this method is just the beginning of the takeover of the entire oil fields--wherever there are the limestone deposits-- in the central states and throughout the Permian Basin.

This is not something I agree to as an individual with freedom to own and operate oil leases within the state of Kansas. It is an encroachment upon my property rights. Why should I be made to relinquish my inheritance left to me by my father to a group of investors from Harvard and California? How can that be a free America?

Respectfully submitted,

Barbra Holt Simpson
